

Who's M?

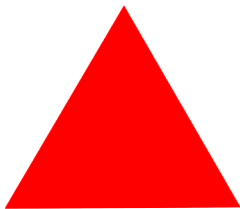

M is an alter ego created by Emmy due to her insecurity in her lack of consistent style. This came about 2 years ago now and has remained a bridge for Emmy ever since. Emmy enjoys using M as it links her wide variety of work & topics to a stable source. It provides her with a form to play with, whilst adding some structure to her assortment of concepts and visuals. By using the cover of M, allows Emmy to act impulsively and honestly with full confidence. Whereas, the direct connection of work to Emmy is an uneasy thought for her. This is believed to be due to her being apprehensive over calling herself an artist for personal reasons.

Why the red triangle?

The red triangle is used as a stamp throughout the work of M. This is a statement of power & passion within the topic presented. Yet due to the equilateral aspect of the triangle, it welcomes all voices & opinions as equals.

The power triangle theory currently exists but situated around a theory of life. Nevertheless, M uses it in her work as the definition consistently works in her practise.

‘Power triangle relating apparent power to true power and reactive power.’

A poem written by M to support the strive for the independence & power women.

To be read in red you must understand whats ahead.
to understand you must stand, for you and youís
To be red , support the angular stance with proud promiscuity.

Be heartily graceful for you,
be solicitous for youís,
yet be merciless and aware to them.
